CHAPTER 2: THE EVOLUTION OF GLOBAL POLITICS

What Students Should Learn from This Chapter

Define the major developments in international relations during the “long peace” of the nineteenth century and identify the major powers of that period.

Compare and contrast the contending explanations for First World War and Second World War.

Describe the reasoning behind, and the impact of, US development and use of the atomic bomb.

Outline the major changes wrought on world politics by the end of European colonization of Africa and Asia.

Outline the effects of the end of the Cold War on regional politics.

Describe the possible effects that the death of Osama bin Laden might have upon globalized terrorist events

Outline

1) Introduction

- a) “Current” events listed here stem from a deeper world history
- b) Knowing about these histories takes us a step closer to understanding global politics—the past, present, and future

2) World Wars: Modern and Total

- a) Changes in military technology shaped the ways in which the combatants fought
- b) Both wars also featured controversies over the treatment of civilians, indiscriminate bombing of cities
- c) Academic disagreements about causation of First World War
 - i) Political, military, or systemic factors

- ii) Fisher, Germany's Aims in the First World War (1967), argued that German aggression, motivated by the internal political needs of an autocratic elite, was responsible for the war
- d) Features of "Total War" 1914–1918
 - i) Defensive technologies defeated offensives
 - (1) Machine guns, rapid-fire cannon
 - (2) Trench warfare systems
 - ii) Fighting a global event: war fought in South Atlantic, Africa, Asia, Europe
 - iii) United States entered the war in 1917
 - (1) Wilson's Fourteen Points: vision for peaceful international society
 - (a) "Peace without Victors"
 - (b) Respect for national self-determination
 - (c) Freedom of the seas
 - (d) League of Nations: collective security apparatus
- e) Treaty of Versailles (1919): created conditions that led to Second World War
 - i) Germany had signed Armistice in 1918 on basis of Fourteen Points, instead blamed for starting the war: Article 231
 - ii) Germany must pay reparations to Britain and France for war damage
 - iii) Contested borders in Eastern Europe based on national self-determination fueled Hitler's version of aggressive German nationalism
- f) Second World War
 - i) German new style of offensive warfare: Blitzkrieg
 - (1) Defeated Poland, France, others quickly

- (2) Bogged down after June 1941 attack on USSR
 - ii) Holocaust: Nazi Germany's attempted genocide of Jewish people and other groups
 - iii) United States was drawn into war with December 1941 Japanese attack on military bases on Oahu
 - iv) Controversy continues about US decision to drop atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki, Japan
- 3) Legacies and Consequences of European Colonialism
- a) Effects of Second World War
 - i) Defeat of European powers undermined legitimacy of their colonial rule
 - ii) UN Charter promised respect for sovereign equality of states
 - b) Factors influencing the process of decolonization
 - i) The attitude of the colonial power
 - ii) The ideology and strategy of the anti-imperialist forces
 - iii) The role of external powers
 - c) Decolonization in Asia
 - i) Marxism a potent ideological force
 - ii) Vietnam War (1946–1975)
 - (1) US involved to stop spread of Communism to other countries: “domino theory”
 - (2) Cold War context: USSR and Chinese support for North Vietnam against US-backed South Vietnamese government
- 4) Cold War: US–USSR Confrontation from 1945 to 1991
- a) Overview

- i) In the West, historians have debated which country was responsible for the collapse of the wartime alliance
 - ii) Relations between Moscow and its Eastern European “allies,” with the People’s Republic of China (PRC), and with revolutionary forces in the Third World created conditions for post–Cold War global relations
 - iii) East–West dispute resulted from opposing views of the best way of organizing society: the Western system of market capitalism or the Eastern bloc’s centrally-planned economies
 - iv) The US–USSR relationship was a managed conflict, with both countries recognizing limits of behavior: a framework of informal rules
 - (1) After Cuban missile crisis, no direct confrontation between the two
 - (2) “Brushfire wars” in developing world in which millions died in proxy conflicts
 - (3) Caution regarding nuclear weapons threats: need to prevent nuclear war
- b) Onset of the Cold War
- i) Resulted from failure to implement the principles agreed at the wartime conferences of Yalta and Potsdam
 - (1) Futures of Germany and Central and Eastern European countries
 - (2) Reconciling principles of national self-determination with national security was a formidable task
 - ii) In the West, there was growing feeling that Soviet policy towards Eastern Europe was guided not by concern with security, but by ideological expansion
 - iii) US reaction to perceived Soviet expansion

- (1) Truman Doctrine: March 1947 aid to Turkey and Greece and a declaration that America would support those threatened by Soviet subversion
 - (2) Containment policy expressed the self-image of the United States as inherently defensive
 - (3) Marshall Plan (June 1947) for European economic recovery, which was essential to the economic rebuilding of Western Europe
- iv) USSR installed political regimes friendly to its interests in Eastern Europe
- (1) Democratic socialist and other anticommunist forces were undermined and eliminated
 - (2) Exception: Yugoslavia
 - (a) Marxist leader, Marshal Tito (Josep Broz), consolidated his personal power position while maintaining independence from Moscow
 - (b) Yugoslavia later played an important role in the Third World Nonaligned Movement
- v) First confrontation was over Berlin (June 1948–May 1949)
- (1) Dispute over US and UK unifying their zones of occupation in Germany
 - (2) USSR's Stalin objected, severed road and rail communications
 - (3) US and UK began airlift of supplies to Berlin
 - (4) Results
 - (a) USSR ends blockade
 - (b) US deployed nuclear-capable bombers to Britain as a threat
 - (c) NATO Alliance of Western European countries was created in April 1949
- vi) Victory of Chinese Communists (October 1949) important to Cold War confrontation

- (1) US ally lost war against Communists
 - (2) Alters US perception of threats to US interests and Asian political affairs
- c) Conflict, confrontation, and compromise
- i) Korean War (1950–1953)
 - (1) Soviet-allied North attacks US-allied South
 - (2) US gets UN General Assembly to pass Uniting for Peace Resolution
 - (3) War ends in armistice, stalemate continues today
 - ii) Key events in Europe
 - (1) USSR creates Warsaw Pact 1955
 - (a) Response to West German rearmament and entry into NATO
 - (b) US deploys nuclear weapons to Europe, seeking to deter perceived threat of Soviet aggression
 - (2) Khrushchev's policy of reform and de-Stalinization (1953–1956)
 - (a) Khrushchev seeking to modernize Soviet society, decrease role of internal terror policy
 - (b) Political reforms lead to upheaval in East Germany, Poland, Hungary
 - (3) Khrushchev's policy toward West
 - (a) Political coexistence and ideological confrontation
 - (b) Soviet support for national liberation movements in developing world
 - iii) Effects of Cold War confrontation
 - (1) US

- (a) Commitment to liberal democracy and national self-determination often subordinated to Cold War perspectives, as well as US economic and political interests
- (b) Cold War saw the growth of large, permanent intelligence organizations
- (2) Crises over Berlin in 1961 and Cuba in 1962
 - (a) Risk of direct military confrontation
 - (b) In October 1962, the possibility of nuclear war
- (3) Coexistence developed after Cuban missile crisis
 - (a) Arms race continued
 - (b) US deployed “theater” or “tactical” nuclear weapons to NATO allies
 - (c) International pressure for Nuclear Nonproliferation Treaty, 1968
 - (i) Nuclear powers agree to transfer nonmilitary nuclear technology to signatories
 - (ii) Created nuclear safeguards to limit proliferation of weapon technology
 - (iii) Does not include all countries, especially Israel, India, and Pakistan
- d) The rise and fall of détente
 - i) Détente: lessening of tensions between US and USSR, developed out of West German policy of Ostpolitik
 - ii) Motivations
 - (1) USSR
 - (a) Relations with PRC deteriorating
 - (b) Sought recognition of parity with US
 - (2) US

- (a) Sought limits to potential military conflict, arms race
- (b) Exploited USSR–PRC situation for rapprochement with PRC
- (3) Did not end US–USSR political conflict
 - (a) Each continued to pursue own often-incompatible goals
 - (b) War scare of October 1973 during Arab–Israeli War as US and USSR supported and resupplied regional allies
 - (c) US objected to USSR support for revolutionary movements in the Third World
 - (i) Ethiopia
 - (ii) Angola
 - (d) Nuclear arms race continued as USSR gained first parity and then, some analysts argued, superiority to the US in nuclear weapons
- (4) End of détente: 1979–1980
 - (a) NATO voted to deploy American Pershing II and ground-launched cruise missiles
 - (b) Soviet forces invaded Afghanistan to support allied government
 - (c) US presidential politics: Reagan won on get-tough-with-USSR policy and perception of Carter’s failures
- e) The Second Cold War
 - i) Reagan inherited breakdown of coexistence policy
 - (1) Seemed ill-informed about nuclear weapons issues
 - (2) Did not want arms control pacts that froze existing numbers of weapons
 - (3) Sought Strategic Defense Initiative (“Star Wars”) anti-ballistic missile program

- (a) Reagan believed that defense was moral, offensive weapons immoral
- (b) USSR response
 - (i) Contended program would violate ABM Treaty of 1972
 - (ii) Believed US wanted to regain nuclear monopoly of 1950s
- ii) US policy and public statements created fear of nuclear war in Western Europe
 - (1) US military invasion of Grenada
 - (2) Support for antidemocratic and anticommunist guerrillas in Central America
- iii) Soviet side limited by series of aging political leaders; this changed with Gorbachev
 - (1) New era of reform
 - (a) “New Thinking” in foreign policy
 - (b) Domestic reforms
 - (i) Glasnost: openness of government
 - (ii) Perestroika: restructuring the economy
 - (2) Domestic policies encouraged nationalism, which would eventually destroy the USSR
 - (3) New Thinking in foreign policy created change
 - (a) Intermediate-Range Nuclear Forces Treaty (1987) eliminating the weapons in Europe
 - (b) Strategic Arms Reductions Treaty (START) reduced long-range forces to early-1980s levels
- 5) From the Cold War to the War on Terror
 - a) Iraq invasion of Kuwait 1990

- i) Helped to create US President G. H. W. Bush's New World Order, or revived collective security arrangement of UN Charter, and "rule-based system"
- ii) US built consensus within UN structure, included USSR in deliberations
- iii) US obtained UN sanctions and mandate against Iraq
- b) Effects of end of the Cold War
 - i) Political freedom for former Soviet satellites
 - ii) Devising new tasks for NATO, United Nations, European Union
- 6) Globalization: A New International Order?
 - a) The post-Cold War order was one in which many states played by a single set of rules within an increasingly competitive world economy.
 - b) Globalization meant different things to different theorists
 - i) Undermining borders and states, literally abolishing the Westphalian system
 - ii) Different context within which international relations was now being played out
 - (1) Globalization did not do away with the state or destroy the underlying logic of anarchy
 - (2) Some writers skeptical of whether there was anything especially novel about globalization
 - c) Impact of post-Cold War globalization
 - i) Massive wealth creation for some people
 - ii) New technologies meant new methods of product design, development, and production
 - d) From superpower to hyperpower—US primacy
 - i) Resurgent, confident US: it had "won" the Cold War

- ii) Europeans called US a “hyperpower”
- iii) Despite dominance, US still faced threats
 - (1) “Rogue states”
 - (2) Nuclear proliferation
 - (3) Growing radical form of Islam
 - (4) Failure in Somalia, 1993
- e) Europe in the new world system
 - i) Key question: how to manage new political landscape
 - ii) Cases
 - (1) United Germany
 - (2) Self-determination for former Soviet satellite states
 - (3) What should the role of the European Union be?
 - (4) No longer any need for NATO as the defender of Western Europe
 - (5) No clear policy on what to do about Turkey’s membership in the European Union
- f) Russia: from Yeltsin to Putin
 - i) Newly democratic and capitalist Russia sought alterations in relations with Western Europe
 - ii) Russian government “economic shock therapy” policy caused economic collapse in mid-1990s
 - iii) President Putin’s policy changes
 - (1) Greater authoritarianism and nationalism at home
 - (2) Clearer recognition that the interests of Russia and the West would not always be the same

- (3) Persistent drive to bring the Russian economy back under state control
 - (4) United States could no longer regard Russia as a perpetual strategic partner
 - g) East Asia: primed for rivalry?
 - i) Unlike in Europe, no unifying community of interests in Asia
 - ii) Reasons why regional disputes may not expand
 - (1) Economic success experienced by the region
 - (2) Though many states in East Asia have memories of past conflicts, these were beginning to be overridden in the 1990s by a growth in regional trade and investment
 - (3) Japan
 - (a) Despite an inability to apologize for past atrocities, its policies could hardly be characterized as disturbing
 - (b) Strong post-1950s tradition of anti-militarism
 - (c) No interest at all in upsetting its suspicious neighbors
 - (d) By spreading foreign aid and large-scale investment, Japan fostered better international relations in the region
 - (4) China: cause for guarded optimism
 - (a) Adopted less aggressive policies
 - (b) Supporting regional integration, exporting capital to other countries in East Asia, and working as a responsible state in regional multilateral institutions
- 7) The War on Terror: from 9/11 to Iraq
 - a) Effects of September 11, 2001 attacks

- i) The new threat environment provided the US with a focus for its international relations
 - ii) Bush administration officials felt compelled to act in a far more assertive fashion abroad
 - iii) Bush policymakers seemed to abandon the defense of the status quo in the Middle East
- b) 2003 Iraq invasion conundrum
- i) Iraqi government not involved in the September 11 attacks
 - (1) Secular regime that Islamists opposed
 - (2) Shared US goal of containing Iran
 - ii) Possible reasons for US invasion of Iraq
 - (1) Effects of neoconservative ideology on President Bush
 - (2) Desire to defend Israel from possible Iraqi attack
 - (3) Desire to control Iraqi oil wealth
 - (4) US leaders believed they could win easily and then get out
 - iii) Results of Iraqi invasion
 - (1) Increased radical Islamist support
 - (2) Decreased credibility for US
 - (3) Distraction from war in Afghanistan
- 8) Conclusion

How the Chapter Relates to the Central Themes of the Text

This chapter provides a brief summary of the key world historical events that helped to globalize the industrial culture of Western Europe and the United States. These events are often the focus of theories that international relations scholars use to describe, explain, and predict the past, present, and future of global politics. The events in this survey provide a minimum of what a student should know.

Suggested Lecture Topics and Class Activities

Compare the conduct of international relations in the eighteenth century with international politics in the nineteenth.

Use the partition and reestablishment of Poland (eighteenth century), the Greek war of independence (nineteenth century), and the Bosnian civil war (twentieth century) to show how Realpolitik shapes the Great Powers' policies toward nationalist conflicts.

Describe how the Industrial Revolution made trade more lucrative and warfare more destructive.

Compare the “tools of the trade” of preindustrial- and industrial-era merchants, sailors, and soldiers (horse-drawn wagons vs. railroads, the telegraph vs. the Pony Express, the sailing ship vs. the steam-powered ironclad, and the muzzle-loading musket vs. the repeating cartridge rifle) to show how economic cooperation among states became more profitable, and the security dilemma more acute, in the industrial age.

Examine the interests and risks involved in the July 1914 crisis from the vantage points of Vienna, St. Petersburg, Berlin, Paris, and London.

Compare and contrast the role of nationalism in July 1914 Europe and 2014 Ukraine.

Divide students into groups to play the role of “defense attorney” and “state prosecutor” for the League of Nations in the interwar period regarding German, Italian, and Japanese aggression. Have the student research the success of the League.

Discuss the effect of ideas in bringing change to the international system. Compare and contrast the thinking behind the Peace of Westphalia, the Concert of Europe, and the US-led “Coalition of the Willing” in 2003.

Present contending explanations for the start of the Cold War.

European colonization of Africa and Asia activity: Divide students into groups. Get them to connect the effects of the 1885 Berlin Conference to the modern situations in Darfur, Sri Lanka, Punjab, and elsewhere.

Discussion Questions

Why has an originally European society of states become the general norm around the world?

Was nineteenth-century European international society merely a means of legitimizing imperialism?

How did the methods by which European colonies in Africa and Asia gained their independence determine their post-independence internal politics?

Why did the United States become involved in wars in Asia after 1950? Illustrate your answer by reference to either the Korean or Vietnam war.

How have scholars of international relations attempted to explain the end of the Cold War?

Why did liberal theorists assume the world would become a more stable place after the end of the Cold War, and why did realists disagree with them? Was either side correct?

If the United States won the Cold War, why did it have such problems defining a grand strategy for itself after 1989 and before 9/11?

Has globalization since 1991 changed the basic character of world politics?

How successfully has Europe adapted to the challenges facing it since the end of the Cold War?

How has the war on terror changed international politics?

Has the rise of aggressive Russian nationalism challenged the notion of the US as the global hegemon?
